Coming to Alaska, building a house and starting a new life - that was her dream. Until Chloe's fiance decides that he wants to venture out on his own in order to "find himself". Then she's left alone without a house, no car, a whole lot of building materials - and no way to build her new home.

Tucker can't stand it. Chloe was the cutest, sexiest thing to hit Winthrop since...ever! And she's sleeping out in a tent while sleet comes down, coating everything with ice. Not happening. He's been half in love with the woman since she arrived and now, her fiancée is gone. Time to move in, sweep the woman off her feet and show her that Tucker was the better man.

But when the fiancée comes back, Tucker is trapped by his own machinations. Chloe thinks he manipulated the situation and, well, he had. Now he has to show her that he'd done it for her, because they were meant to be together.
